

Figure 14.6 The cleanup stage of the fingerprinting process is not always required—the clarity of the friction ridges photographed here is a direct result of the contrast provided by blood. (Copyright: West Yorkshire Police, U.K.)