

Figure 14.2 Photograph showing an area of friction ridge detail that has been processed using cyanoacrylate (superglue) and then dyed with BY40. The BY40 makes the recovered fingerprint glow against the background when the item is examined using a crime light. This photograph was taken with a filter of the desired wavelength over the camera lens. (Copyright: West Yorkshire Police, U.K.)