

Figure 9.1 Map of the United Kingdom and Ireland showing the approximate location of the remains that are thought to have entered the water and location where they were discovered. A distance of approximately 100 km separates both points, movement achieved over a period of 4 months.